This is a Laffargue upright player piano circa 1910. Entire piano, including player mechanism was refurbished in 1975 with electrical blower in addition to the foot-operated bellows. It's always been in an air-conditioned/heated home and has been played regularly but it's started to deteriorate nonetheless. Three black keys are broken off and some hammers and strings need to be repaired. The action is still good on all keys and they spring back nicely into place. It could benefit from some re-work but likely doesn't need a full restoration. It still sounds great and is very resonant. Does not include piano bench. Adoptee responsible for moving.
