This pretty piano has a couple of sticking keys which do not pop back up on their own, which is bad, per my piano tuner. I am a professional musician not interested in a less-than-quality instrument. Perhaps you like the look and can deal with the sticking? Or you can have the work done yourself?

It is in the second floor of our large townhouse in Fairfax City that just sold. It's fairly easy to get down the first 8 steps to the front door, then about 8 steps more outside to get on the ground.
